DEVMAR ASSOCIATES TO DISTRIBUTE AAR MOBILITY SYSTEMS' CONTINGENCY RESPONSE COMMUNICATION SYSTEM

WOOD DALE, ILLINOIS (June 18, 2009) - AAR (NYSE: AIR), announced today that it has entered into a distribution agreement with DevMar Associates to promote and sell AAR's Contingency Response Communication System (CRCS). The AAR CRCS provides local, state and federal government agencies with a simple to operate, totally interoperable communications solution that bridges the communication gaps between first responder agencies and various levels of command and control.

"AAR is looking forward to working with Dennis DuVal and his team at DevMar Associates," said Lee Krantz, Vice President and General Manager of AAR Mobility Systems. "Dennis' extensive background working with government agencies at many different levels, combined with his knowledge of the communications requirements during a disaster and experience as Chief of Police of Syracuse, NY gives him solid credibility and makes him a natural fit to represent the CRCS in the marketplace."

"AAR has developed a very capable and dependable product in the CRCS," said Dennis DuVal, President of DevMar Associates. "We are excited about bringing this product to the marketplace as a solution to the disaster communications needs of municipalities and federal agencies across the country."

The CRCS is an IP-based, agency-neutral solution that allows first responders to communicate and exchange information with radio interoperability, live streaming video, wireless Internet and VoIP services. Potential operators include military, firefighters, law enforcement, National Guard, Department of Homeland Security and other organizations involved in disaster recovery activity.
